

Art Gallery of Peterborough Welcomes New Board and Committee Members

The Art Gallery of Peterborough held its annual general meeting on Thursday June 4th, and welcomed three new members to its Board of Directors.

Moira Howes is an Associate Professor of Philosophy and is the newly appointed Dean of Humanities at Trent University. She brings experience in governing councils, has been a member of the University-City Interaction committee, and has expertise in strategic planning.

Fran Fearnley is the owner/director of ZimArt and the Rice Lake Art Gallery. She has a background in publishing and editing, and brings international business strategic planning experience to the Board.

Adam Charlton recently relocated to Peterborough from Toronto, has a fine arts and business background, and has exhibited his work in London, Windsor and Toronto.

The AGP also welcomes new members to its committees: Barbara Connolly has joined the Finance Committee, Sarah Vissers has joined Fundraising and Development, and Jennifer-Anne McCowan and Anne Gaensbauer have joined Outreach and Development.

Continuing to serve on the Board of Directors is Siobhan M. Tremblay, Rob Kingston, Peter Frood, Pauline Sandys, Anne Cordon, Carla Rinaldo, Kim Wood, Dave Miller, and Councillor Dianne Therrien.

The AGP also welcomes the continued service of committee members: Audrey Armstrong, Cindi Brumpton, Marney Hamilton, Claire Hogenkamp, Glenda Hunter, David Tomlinson, and Wendy Trusler.

Among their other duties, the Board of Directors will undertake a Strategic Plan for the Gallery beginning in Fall 2015 and will host the annual fundraising event: It's All About ART on October 24.

Launched following the AGM was a new series of communications called "We're Talking About It" telling the story of what the AGP has undertaken in the past year. Visit our website for updates: <http://agp.on.ca/news/were-talking-about-it/>.
